

THE DAILY TRIBUNE, Wisconsin Rapids
Monday, January 3, 1972

HOSTILITY ALL AROUND

A Bihari father holds his son, a suspected cholera victim, inside the world's largest jute mills at Narayan-ganj, Bangladesh, where some 30,000 of his people are being guarded by a company of Indian soldiers. They are being protected against violence of the local Bengalis. The Biharis locked themselves inside the mills to escape reprisals after the fall of East Pakistan. (AP Wirephoto)